Performance notes:

- 1) If you have only one voice per part, feel free to "loosen" up the parts with occasional improvisational flourishes. If you have many voices per part, assign one or two singers to throw in periodic vocal ad libs.
- 2) If snapping on 2 and 4, consider adding a snap on the "and" of 2 during the "wah-oooh" section of the verses.
- 3) This arrangement works best when sung with a dose of "attitude;" the syncopations and counter-rhythms are best punched, and a pointed, aggressive doo-wop/pop chest-voice placement will bring these notes to life.
- 4) Experiment during rehearsal by singing this arrangement full voice, and practice performing it with a good amount of body movement (not choreography, just bounce, sway, etc.). I've found it's easier to reduce energy than increase it, and this songs needs plenty of vocal and physical energy.
